To say I have difficult hair, that would be an understatement. It took me years to find a hairdresser that understood my mane, but after my first visit to Wakko, I knew I never wanted to go anywhere else.

To start with: they cut your hair when it's dry, meaning they respect how your hair flows. They, by the way, are Fabian (the 'bald' one) and Fred.

Then: they're always in a good mood, even when the salon is full of waiting customers, and they play sing-along music all day (Madonna, Britney, Cyndi Lauper, etc).

Also: after all those years they know exactly what I want. I can come in, sit down, and know it will be exactly how I wanted it. (Even though they call me une difficile à cuire (a difficult one to boil), referring both to my hair needing more time than average to soak up the dye, and my threatening to cry should they cut it shorter than I asked for).

More: you get a nice cup of coffee, they use top hair products ( Paul Mitchell, Joico, Kevin Murphy, ..) and are not overpriced.
